

Hanson Year-End Review 2019

Well, the holidays are already upon us! It's been a run-of-the-mill year for us around here in the Hanson household.

Bob finally got that promotion in May to be COO of Procter & Gamble. Apparently he is the youngest ever -- who knew he would get promoted when he started working in sales for P&G 2 years ago? He's grown the already massive company by 15%. Still, you know Bob. He continues to strive for better.

Jenny graduated college with highest honors, summa cum laude, in mechanical engineering -- and she got a job straight out of college at SpaceX and is working on the mission to mars. She is having a blast! Get it?!

Derrick will be competing in the summer Olympics next year in Tokyo. As many of you know he is a pretty good fencer, and it shows! He is slated to be gold medalist for USA. Keep a lookout for him as you watch the summer games!

Young Suzie turned 8 this year and is really taking off in her violin lessons -- she has already performed with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra! She is having a great time, and still brings home those straight A's.

As for Mary, this year has been busy as she has continued to grow her nonprofit organization, "Talk It Out," which focuses on helping youth and adults have a safe space to address conflict, receive therapy, and get help with addiction. They're at over 20 locations, while this time last year they had 5!

We stay pretty busy, but we always make time for the most important things. We share family dinners every night of the week. Those are the most special times for us to laugh, share stories, and just be together over a home-cooked meal.

We made sure to get some R&R this year together with our annual trip to the maldives. You haven't been? Definitely worth a trip, though we are thinking of switching things up since we have been so many times. We are thinking of touring the country of Europe next year. We are open to input -- where are the best spots you've been?

All in all, it's been a fairly standard year for us Hanson's. Here's to hoping we all do better next year!
