

Dear Friend,

This year has been the best year I could have imagined! I did everything I set out to do! Honestly! Wow! What a fantastic year! For nine months, I got to binge watch Netflix! I caught up on 12 years of television I had let pass my attention. I also was able to stop exercising and eat a lot of pastries. Who knew I love pastries so much!

Now, I don't want to brag, but I was also able to attend countless Zoom meetings. Who knew Zoom could be so energy giving! After every meeting, I felt like I had just run a marathon and my eyes - the way they dart back and forth looking at me, looking at the people in their squares - my eyes are the true winners. They have never darted so much! I have also realize I like to look at myself a lot.

Eight years ago, when we bought this house because it's small, cosy but open concept - well, that was the best decision, especially during a lock down that just keeps on going and going. The 900 square foot house is the perfect place for my husband, daughter and our cat. I am kind of kicking myself for not going full tiny house and living in a 250 square foot house as I had originally hoped we would do when we became homeowners. I am now regularly woken up my husband's nose blowing! He loves to honk his horn! And flush that toilet he does at all house of the nighth! Whoo-hoo! It brings me much joy to know how regular he is! Sound really does amplify in an open concept floor plan. I hear everything! I do think I must have the best hearing in the entire world!

Oh, dear friend, I have missed having our regular chats in the coffee shop while you drink your coffee with cream and sugar, sometimes black, sometimes with no sugar and I drink my raspberry and rose oolong tea. I miss hearing about your adventures of pure joy and life! I hope we may re-connect in the new year. Just know that I am well and eating pastries, while going through every language of television show available because life is so grand and there is so much I can do while staying safer at home!

Tootles!

Love always,

Joy!
