

Happy Holidays from the Buttmunsch Clan

What a super fantastic year it's been for all of us in Buttmunschworld! I always get a crazy kick out of reflecting on all of the super fantastic things we've all been up to in good old 2019. I'm writing this in front of a roaring fire from our new "cottage" (8 Bdrms, 6 car garage) on the slopes of Aspen. We had Bill Gates and Warren Buffett (new neighbors) over for a cup of Joe the other day. Love to share thoughts on investing and philanthropy with my new chums.

(NOT such chums when I needed Bail $)

Our super special daughter Pookie will finish her junior year at Ms. Dolores Habbershams College Prep and Finishing School. We hear she's getting straight A's in all her classes – all AP by the way – is President of the Student Body, Captain of the Volleyball, Basketball and Field Hockey teams. All this while spending 20 hours a week tutoring underprivileged kids from Lake Forest. We actually haven't spoken or corresponded with her since we dropped her off in August, but she's just so gosh darned busy. Oh, the good times we'll have catching up if when she comes home or calls one day.

We wonder if she exaggerates studies

Our son, Scooter, is taking a "gap" year after he finished his sentence and parole. He's just such a swell kid. We did all we could to provide him with assistance and support in applying to the best colleges – we read the Lori Laughlin book like it was a what to do model. We thought he got a scholarship to University of North Dakota to play golf there, despite him never having played before – but he loved to watch Tiger on TV. Turns out he went to University of North Korea which does not have the best campus, but they provided the discipline he needs to stay focused on his "labors". He did get to play a round with Kim Jong-un and Dennis Rodman, and they all had 18 holes in one!

BRUCE

NOT really a bride, please.

The love of my life, Muffy, continues with the ongoing restoration of our condo. 10 years (and $3 million) later, it's finally complete. Muffy developed a special relationship with Biff, our contractor / builder / confidant and financial advisor. They scoured the world together for the best ideas and designs for our abode. It's been quite the whirlwind and Mumsy has been happy to have me at home with her again as the renovations continued. I hope they are pleased with their work. We have decided to sell recently and have a really solid offer for $90,000.

FORNICATING WITH Clients - profits!

My MOM Never loved me!

My life has been so rewarding as an investor and executor of my parent's finances. As I have always said, "Go big or go home". Some of my clients have been less than pleased with their returns which is surprising since I did graduate from the Bernie Madoff School of Stock Management. My lawyer, Michael Cohen, and I will both be spending time in the "Big House" it seems.

EFFING

Yours truly, Kimball (Ballsy) Buttmunsch

P.S. Please donate to my go fund me site. Merry Christmas. Ho, Ho Ho.

I BEG you!
