

HO HO HO FRIENDS

Yes, that's me. In yet another stupid and embarrassing Christmas-themed sweater... again.

Every year. EVERY. YEAR. Every single goddamn year, my human does this to me and EVERY. SINGLE. YEAR. I give this same look to her. Why the fuck can't she understand?! I hate wearing these stupid costumes!!! I am a DOG for crying out loud. More than just a dog - I am a SIBERIAN HUSKY. I am not meant for these silly little games she likes to play by dressing me up and taking photos of me for only her fun and amusement - because I am most CERTAINLY not having a good time here.

The worst part about it is that I wasn't even bribed with anything. No treats, no bones, no mud-playing, no running in and out of bushes - the human just came home one day with a goofy smile on her face about a "cute" outfit she got me and immediately took hold of me to put it on. The nerve of this human!!!!!! If it is so "cute," then how come I don't ever see HER wearing it herself?!?!?

How foolish of me to think that this year would be the one year where my human lays off the costumes. I am thirteen years old now, I am WAY too damn exhausted to be dealing with this puppy-like shit still. If I die prematurely, it will be because of the emotional stress my human is causing me by dressing me up in these RIDICULOUS outfits.

Whatever you do, please do NOT spread this photo of me around. I have a reputation to uphold and a tinder account full of suitors to keep track of. I am trusting you with my mother-barking life here. And if I found out that it was shared... you will meet your maker.

Hope your holidays are off to a better start than mine are. Merry Barkmas.

All my howls,
Zoe 🐾🐾
